Smith assumes office

20 or 40 different views until they say 'We don't know what you want.'

"If this cacaphony continues," Smith said, "we will continue to suffer."

Smith has submitted a $2 billion 1986-87 systemwide budget—an increase of $230 million over last year's.

However, he had limited input in that figure. Hayward and the the Budget Legislation and Finance Committee—one of the Board of Governors' committees—did most of the work.

"It was put together before I arrived," Smith said.

The additional funds would be targeted for student assessment and counseling, improved services to transfer students, specialized training for faculty and staff, and purchase or replacement of equipment.

The Board of Governors approved the proposed budget last month, Smith can expect tougher resistance from the legislature and Governor Deukmejian.

"We have to convince Governor Deukmejian that we are post second institutions," Smith said, "and then we will get a better shake."

Dr. Smith is the result of a national search, and Thomas W. Fryer Jr., chancellor for the Foothill-De Anza Community College District, seems pleased with the selection.

"Part of being a good leader is being a good follower," Fryer said, "and it is to have confidence in the kind of leadership (Smith) will provide."

Transfer center programs new assistance for minority students

by Margaret Menduno

Assistance will be offered to minority students using De Anza as a stepping stone to four-year institutions. The Transfer Center is beginning a special project to target such students.

Coordinated by Donna Fung of the counseling department, the Transfer Center has been in operation for three quarters, providing all transfer students with the college catalogues; curriculum requirements and reference materials they might need to plan their eventual transfer.

Also, center assistant Dorothy Chen is contacting by telephone those students from Counseling 50 classes who are Black, Chicano, Native American or Filipino. Statistics show that members of these minority groups are underrepresented both in percentage of students transferred and students graduating with a bachelor's degree.

Once a student is contacted and decides to join the Transfer Project, he or she will be required to fulfill special requirements.

While these are still in the planning stage, some possibilities are: enrollment in a Career Life Planning class and Study Skills class; attending special workshops geared to the needs of transfer students and visiting popular campuses to view student life there first hand. These activities should be in place starting within a quarter.

The entire counseling staff at De Anza will work closely with the Transfer Project. They will refer students who could benefit from the service and offer workshops and drop-in counseling.

The Transfer Center is also working closely with the Multi-Cultural Center to enhance minority transfers from De Anza. However, that program targets low-income students while the Transfer Project will deal with students from all income categories.

Although the Transfer Center applies for statewide funds available for the purpose of targeting minorities, those funds were denied. De Anza's Board of Trustees, however, is enthusiastic enough about the project to provide money for it.

Future plans for the Transfer Center include setting up a peer advisor class to provide an opportunity for students to get involved on the counseling side of the program.

Ms. Fung also envisions a mentor program involving faculty and community members who could stage workshops in their area of expertise, and possibly a summer internship program for students to gain work experience in their major area of study.

Eventually and ideally, Ms. Fung would like to reach students in junior high schools to start preparing them for a four-year degree.

In her words, "To give an image of what college life can be, and to show them that they have a choice."
