Zero Textbook Cost or ZTC

The instructional materials for your course are available for FREE to students.

This can be because:

- You use institutionally licensed campus library materials.
- You have free digital/print copies bought by the institution for all students.
- You have created a course packet of free materials that does not violate copyright.

If the instructional material cost is not passed onto students, the course is Zero Textbook Cost.

Materials that students buy and get to keep, like calculators, paints, etc., can be included for a course to be ZTC.

Open Educational Materials or OER

High-quality teaching, learning, and research resources in the Public Domain or have been released under an intellectual property license, such as a Creative Commons license, permitting their free use and repurposing by others. It may include other resources that are legally available and free of cost to students.

Since they are FREE, they qualify for the Zero Textbook Cost or ZTC marking. OER is one way to achieve ZTC.

Low Textbook Cost or LTC

At De Anza, several courses require textbooks, software, and supplies at a low cost. Any course where students' total cost of instructional materials is $50 or less qualifies for a low-cost or LTC designation.
